Promises of Evian Accords Remain Empty 25 Years After Algerian Independence

By Barry James ternational Herald Tribune Algeria marked 25 years of independence from France on Sunday with scarcely a thought for the special relationship that was supposed to have ensued between the two countries after 132 years of colonial rule.

Two thirds of the Algerian population has been born since the seven-year war of independence, and the passions of those years have largely faded.

France has lost its position of pre-eminence but remains one of the country's main trading partners, although business has been hurt by the decline in the value of Algeria's petroleum and gas exports. Political and diplomatic links are correct, and French continues to be spoken by educated Algerians. But all this falls far short of the intentions of the Evian accords between the French government and the Algerian guerrilla leaders, which ended the war in March 1962.

The agreements envisaged the continuing presence in Algeria of hundreds of thousands of Europeans with guaranteed property rights, a share of appointments in the public service and their own seats in the parliament.

In return, Algeria was to remain within the on the French side were mass

French franc zone. France, then ruled by Charles de Ganlle, promised in support Algeria's economic and social development and to provide a preferential market for its goods. Once independence was achieved, the accords were quickly forgotten. Algeria formally marked its independence day Sunday with displays of fireworks, railies and a youth parade. There was no official mention of the Evian agreements.

France was represented at the celebrations by its justice minister, Albin Chalandon, who rubbed shoulders with guests including Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization: the Vietnamese war hero General Nguyen Giap; and Sergio Ramirez, the vice president of Nicaragua.

By contrast, a rally in Nice last weekend of up to 300,000 pieds noirs, as former French settlets in Algeria are known, appeared to have made more of a political mark in Paris. It was attended by Prime Minister Jacques Chirac and many other political figures.

The Evian accords were nullified by the panicky exodus of nearly a million pieds noirs in the months following independence. In Algeria, tens of thousands of Moslems who had fought

The promise of economic cooperation was equally empty. In 1968 the French government barred Algerian wine under pressure from French farmers. In 1971, Algeria nationalized French petroleum interests in the country, putting an end to any lingering thoughts of a special relationship.

French exports to Algeria declined a further 40 percent in the first four months of 1987 compared with the corresponding period last year, and imports fell 50 percent in value.

Together with the problem of repaying a $17 billion external debt, the loss of export earnings has cast a shadow over Algeria's 1985-89 $110 billion development plan, which for the first time places more emphasis on agriculture than on the development of heavy industry. ## BARBIE: For France's Youth, Lyon Trial Brought the War Era Into Focus

The most emotionally charged accusation against Barbie was that he organized the arrest and dispatch to their deaths of 44 Jewish children, aged 3 to 17, from a home in the village of Izien.

In court Friday, Barbie specifi-cally denied his involvement in a brief final statement to the jury. Testimony on Izleu was among the most harrowing. The children,

In an article carrying a Beirut dateline, Al-Anbaa quoted an unidentified Lebanese party figure as saying that he had "reliable information that Waite died a natural death either last Tuesday or Wednesday.

Asked for evidence of the death, the source said: "I am under oo ohligation to do so. I knew of the death by accident."

In London, a Church of England spokeswoman, Eve Keatly, said that the Most Reverend Robert Runcic, the archbishop of Canterbury, had no word that Mr. Waite was dead.

Officials contacted at the British Foreign Office also said they had not heard anything about Mr. Waite.

There have been reports that Mr. Waite was smuggled into Iran, where he is being held. Iranian leaders have denied that he is being held there.

Other reports bad the church's envoy shot and wounded.

Mr. Waite disappeared in January in Lebanon shortly after he arrived to resume an effort to arrange the release of Western hostages held by pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem groups.

NEAK LUONG, Cambodia - A monument has risen a few steps from the ferry landing where 17 years ago the trussed-up bodies of thousands of Vietnamese residents in Phnom Penh floated down the Mekong, shot by forces of the U.S.-backed Lon Nol government.

The monument, which depicts fraternal Vietnamese and Cambodian soldiers advancing against e common foe, commemorates Vietnam's invasion in 1979, which ousted the murderous Cambodian government of Pol Pot.

"May friendship, solidarity and coopera-tion between Cambodia and Vietnam last for 10,000 years," it proclaims.

A little farther down the river, past the ferry landing, stands the Second Provincial Hospital of Prey Veng, a neat and functional low structure. It was built with the help of the Mennonite Central Committee, an American church organization dedicated to helping underdeveloped countries.

Until 1973, the site was occupied by an even simpler hospital dating from French colonial days. It was destroyed when e U.S.

He died, his throat cut, presumably by anti-government forces, before hc could share his findings.

OPINION

Latin Debt: Let's Keep Muddling Through

The need for dissonance - the marching music of democracy - was affirmed Democracy is at hand. Far from it. What the other day in Moscow by, of all people, Andrei Gromyko, the Soviet president. Speaking to the Supreme Soviet, the former diplomat long known as "Old Stone Face" pleaded for dissent. He complained that debates "were over-organized and in many ways a formality" and had to change. The times, the large-scale renewal drive and the democratization of society demand a precisely functioning mechanism of bringing out public opinion."

Now listen to a 28-year-old mechanic named Suh in Seoul: "In the 1960s, bread was the most important thing. In the '70s, Koreans focused on making more money. But in the '80s, those basic issues have been solved and we need more freedom."

Now listen to Fang Lizhi, an astrophysicist fired from a university post after Chi-nese students demonstrated in support of his plea for more freedoms: "I consider what we call democracy does not belong to the West. In culture, there are many things that belong to all of us. For example, in pbysics we cannot say that there is Chinese physics and Western physics. They are the same .... I think democracy is one of those concepts. If there is no democratization, there can be no modernization."

Mr. Fang is right. Democracy belongs to the world, not to the West. Americans espouse the cause of freedom, but hold no patent on it. Still, it is wonderfully gratifying to hear familiar generalities about libcrty intoned as if they were revelations by a Chinese dissenter, a Korean mechanic and a humorless old Stalinist. The wheel is being reinvented all over the world, in societies as different as Marx and Confucius, in countries as poor as Haiti and as whose appeal is so plainly universal. flourishing as South Korea.

None of this means that the Day of can be credibly maintained is that the momentum is with the values of freedom, and against all forms of tyranny. Highly centralized systems do not work. Dogmatic ideologics have trouble growing wheat and filling bellies. Bureaucracies cannot outguess free markets. Jailed scientists can scarcely be enthusiastic researchers. Wide use of computers is incompatible with obsessive security. A state that fails to respect the rights of citizens earns no respect.

It has become apparent to the ruled that dictators who tremble before poets have reason to fear for their own power. And dictators have learned that nobody believes a censored press, and that a lawful opposition offers the best mirror for emperors to judge their clothes, or lack thereof.

Of course the language of democracy sounds different when Mikhail Gorbachev taiks about "restructuring." He told an inter-viewer recently: "There is but one aim: to strengthen even more consistently the power of the working people, grant them full freedom of creativity and expand the entire system of guarantees of the political and civil rights and freedoms of the Soviet people." Yet the implication is clear: that those freedoms are not now enjoyed by Soviet citizens - words almost as devastating as a plea for nonconformity from Andrei Gromyko.

Four years ago, writing with then fashionable despair, a prominent French intellectual solemnly argued that democracy "may, after all, turn out to have been a historical accident, a brief parenthesis that is closing before our eyes." At the least, the gloom of a Jean-François Revel seems premature, but even flat notes help compose the very music -THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Democracy for Panama

General Manuel Antonio Noriega is getting desperate. The Panama strong man, who stability, built up and relied on the local had imposed a state of emergency to close off defense force. That is how General Noriega protests against his misrule, responded to and his predecessors got into the business of U.S. criticism by lifting the emergency in politics. But a business and commercial class order to permit a demonstration against the U.S. Embassy. Police protection was withdrawn while cabinet and ruling-party officials joined in the vandshism. When real strators returned to the streets, the general had the police disperse them. The same police stood by and let armed men set fire to a building owned by publishers of the opposition newspaper, La Prensa.

General Noriega is not only a corrupt man but a shrewd one. He understands the resentment that some Panamanians feel at living in the shadow of the United States, whose interest in the Panama Canal gives it an emaggerated and not always sympathetic presence. He brands expressions of interest in demo-cratization as interference in domestic affairs, He accuses Washington of fomenting, unrest to undermine the arrangements providing for turning over the canal - the country's great national asset and reason for being. This is the spirit in which he received a solicitous Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua.

In the past the United States, seeking has developed that demands a political system as modern as the country's economy. The time when people would accept General Noriega's sort of military rule is over.

Fortunately the United States, having modernized its state-to-state connection with Panama through Jimmy Carter's Panama Canal treaties, is now modernizing its con-nection to the Panamanian people. It was not possible to lean on the previous military leader, General Omar Torrijos, while counting on him as a partner in the treaty negotiations. It became possible to be bolder when General Noniega took over, but Washington needed a jolt. One was provided by the homogrown peaceful protests against the general that began last month. By critical word and diplomatic deed, the Reagan administration has now separated itself from the military leadership and is openly identifying itself with the forces of democratic change. This is where the U.S. interest lies. -THE WASHINGTON POST.

Opposite Economic Tasks

NEW YORK - Brazil's unilat-eral decision in February to suspend interest payments on its debt brought about a chain reaction of events, including the decision by Citibank, followed by Chase Man-hattan and other U.S. banks, to increase their loan loss reserves. Bank analysts, shareholders and government regulators have praised the banks, and many observers seem to feel that at long last banks are taking their heads out of the sand and recognizing the inevitable. In fact, of course, this transfer of funds - and that is all it is - has not cost the banks a penny. It also does not reduce the obligations of the debtor nations, nor will it diminish the efforts by the banks to recover all the interest and principal represented by their current loans. Thus, from a shorter-term and corporate perspective, the increases in bank reserves have had no real immediate impact on the overall debt situation. Moreover, they were actually followed by a significant increase in hank stock prices.

From a longer-term and international perspective, however, the implications of these moves are far more complex. One might question if all the recent drama really was necessary or in the end beneficial to banks or the major debtor nations. For one thing, although Brazil

After Volcker, a Pro-Growth Agenda

I THAS been suggested that the incoming Federal Reserve chairman; Alan Greenspan, should continue the policies of Paul Volcker. But the main task is not to fight inflation but to restore a credible policy of growth.

One of the Reagan administration's earliest priorities was to get inflation down. But it did not foresee the sudden, massive fall. Whenever inflation falls below the forecast, it means the government has, in effect, overbudgeted for inflation — collecting less revenue than planned and spending more in real, inflation-adjusted dollars than intended. The deficit, far from being a source of inflation, is a result of more disinflation than the government expected,

The disinflation of the 1980s saddled many sectors of the world economy with excessive debt burdens. Mexico, for example, went heavily into debt on the basis of economic forecasts that the price of oil would rise to $65 per barrel in 1986 and on to $100 per barrel by the end of the decade. The same are collateral for debts, leaving many debtors and creditors fatally exposed. Another recession would cause a dangerous unraveling of world debt. Many Americans are ignoring these facts and arguing for an anti-inflation policy consisting of higher taxes to reduce the deficit and higher interest rates to support the dollar. It is hard to imagine a more disastrons policy for a world economy that is still reeling from having lost its bet against the collapse of inflation. Mr. Greenspen must break out of Mr. Volcker's mold.

- Paul Craig Roberts, an economist at Georgeown University's Center for Strategic and International Studies, writing in The New York Tomes.

made a mistake in acting unilaterally, it never has denied its permanent obligation to make interest payments. In fact, the new Brazilian economic plan and willingness to work with the International Monetary. Fund may prove a first step toward the resumption of interest payments. But Brazil's action and the reaction it triggered make it far harder to proceed with the more pedestrian course of step-by-step individual ne-gotiations that has worked reason-ably well in the last five years. Most bankers and investors already took a dim view of Latin American debt, and the latest developments may well make less strong commercial banks still more reluc tant to lead even the himited additional funds that are essential to sustain Latin American economies. Moreover, regional banks, which are new to international lending, may now find the perfect excuse to cut off all new credits to developing nations. Such a drying up of commercial credit would mean that the debtor nations could no longer import essential parts and ecupment to ex-pand production and exports -- thus seriously impeding their prospects for sustained economic growth. This could reduce further the ability of Latin nations even to service their existing debt and, in turn, could ultimately expose Western commercial banks to far greater losses than would have been incurred without such dramatic and widely acclaimed additions to their loan loss reserves. One hopes that a combination of carefully tailored actions by the major commercial banks and international agencies such as the World Bank can avoid such an eventuality.

The real question of concern to lenders is the ability of borrowers to service debt, not whether they can. pay it off. Debt is a fundame component of creative investment and growth: care is the nation or firm that can function effectively without it. The United States has more than its share of foreign debt, and would be hard pressed if asked to pay it all off at once. (In addition, of course, its domestic government debt is in excess of 52 trillion and still climbing.) Yet the United States is viewed as a good risk because lenders are confident that the money they lend. will be serviced on time.

Furthermore, it is a little recognized fact that the exposure of commercial banks in Latin America has decreased significantly in the last five years. In 1982 the nine largest U.S. banks had loans outstanding in . Latin America that amounted to an

And the interest payments of non-oil-exporting Latin American debtors as a percentage of export, earnings declined from 47 percent in 1982 to 34 percent in 1986. However, recovery requires sustained econom-ic growth, which cannot be achieved through domestic structural or policy changes alone, as important as these are in Latin America. Latin American nations must have more working capital as they adjust their economies, and this will require ongoing credit, albeit at a reduced rate increased exports will also be critical to economic growth, and the major industrial nations must refrain from protectionist policies that keep out those exports. They also must

In view of recent developments that make likely a decreasing role by commercial banks in extending new credits to Latin America, however, the international agencies, and espe-cially the World Bank, must be far more active and creative in the future than they have been in the past. In this regard, it is concal that Congress increase U.S. financial and moral support of the World Bank. The bank must have additional funds if it is to expand substantially its extension of credit. Americans-must realize that this route is the most efficient and least expensive vehicle they have to protect their selfinterest in maintaining the credit-worthiness of Latin America. In addition, it is high time for the export credit agencies to become more active than they have been. The world's commercial banks would be very unwise to write off Latin America in their future thinking - or, indeed, to cut back too diastically on a moderate extension of additional credit. ## Education: Koreans Thrive by Taking It Seriously

S EOUL -- Now, after the Korean "economic miracle," comes the startling capitulation of the latest and perhaps last of a succession of autocratic rulers to demands for constitutional revisions. Is is a capitulation that on the surface may seem inexplicable to people who do not have an understanding of the Korean experience, Yet both the economic and the political miracles are founded on a solid and solemn dedication of the Korean people to education. It is a lesson that not only U.S. foreign policy planners would do well to ponder; it is also one that the American people should study on their own account.

In South Korea's modernizing but still Confucian society, education plays a much larger and more ortaut role th bly come as a shock, to Americans who have prided themselves on being among the best and most widely educated people in the world, that within a generation a previously underdeveloped nation has surpassed them. The South Korean hieracy rate of 95 to 96 percent among young people is higher than the American; 80 to 85 percent of South Korean 19year-olds are high school graduates - a higher percentage than the American. Almost as many Koreans as Americans, in relative terms, go to college, and more would go except for the rigid limits that the government has set until now. Koroan percents and youths ante focus on ourcation as the way up. The Korean Horatio Alger story is about the poor kid from the country getting into Scoul National or Yonsei University. It is a yearning that built up and was stilled for centuries under Chinese and Japanese domination and repression. Although Sunggyungwan, the Confucian university, traces its roots back 500 years, the Japanese, who occupied Korea from 1905 to 1945, permitted only handfuls of Koreans to achieve a higher education. Japan has been slow to react to the fall of the dollar and the coming drop in the flow of Japanese goods into the American market. Rising unemployment will strengthen the case for a sharper swing in Japanese economic policy. No one knows precisely where that point lies, but the consensus among economists puts it at an unemployment rate somewhere between 5 and 7 percent. At the present 6.1 percent, unemployment is now close to the midpoint of that range. That is a powerful reason for President Reagan to work together with Congress on a substantial cut in next year's budget deficit.

Just as Japan has to raise internal demand as its exports fall, the United States has to reduce internal demand - generated by that hage budget deficit - as its exports begin to rise. The two most powerful economies in the world are now going through a demanding passage in which, to avoid disaster, speed and agility will be crucial. But both, so far, are reacting only slowly and reluctantly. -THE WASHINGTON POST.

A Mixed Verdict on the Trial

ft was no surprise that they found Klaus Barbic guilty of crimes against humanity and jailed him for life. In a way, it was already in the script of this splendidly produced, tightly directed trial.

Was the trial a success? Yes, if you want retribution against an evil old man who has been an intermittent menace to humanity for balf a century. Yes, in most but not all ways, if you want a solemn rite of public memory to honor the victims of the Third Reich and to warn new generations of what happens when categories of hu-man beings cease to be regarded as entirely human. But if you look to the Barbie trial for a good, clean process of justice whose outcome rests on the quality of the evidence, then the answer must be no.

Trials of this kind, after 40 years, are a matter of building a bridge between what we know to be true and what we can show to be true. Barbie was a torturer and a murderer who deported innocent men, women and children to their deaths. But the memories of those noble survivors of many different hells who came to the Lyon assize court in the past two months were often contradictory, often hazy or less than conclusive. So were many of the documents. --- Neal Ascherson in The Observer (London).

Education: Many Americans Need a Literacy Corps By Warren E. Burger and Edward M. Kennedy ness the idealism, entl

Mr. Burger, former chief justice of the United States, is chairman the Constitution Bicentennial Commission. Mr. Kennedy, a Democrat, is the senior senator from Massachusettis.

WASHINGTON - The United States prides itself on being an "advanced" nation, but its level of illiteracy mocks the term. At international gatherings, President Reagan, in common with most 20th century American presidents, represents a country with the poorest literacy record of all the industrialized nations.

The answer is at hand. Congress is considering a new strategy in the battle against illiteracy - a Literacy Corps, in which college students would work part-time as totors in schools and community agencies as part of a special college course. Vast numbers of citizens lack basic reading skills. According to the best available estimate, 29 million American adults cannot read the wanting on a can of pesticide or a pack of ciga-rettes, a newspaper headline, or a let-ter from a child's teacher.

As President Reagan has said, "The hidden problem of adult illiteracy holds back too many of our citizens and as a nation, we, too, pay a price." He is absolutely right. And the price will go higher. Illiteracy costs beavily in reduced international competitive-ness, increased poverty, higher welfare and uncorployment benefits, lesser skills in the armed forces, industrial accidents, lost productivity and deadend lives of crime and drugs. It is an insidious threat to constitutional democracy, as increasing numbers of citizens find themselves unable to participate in the system and may become susceptible to demagoguery. The United States has never addressed this problem effectively. The government spends only a relatively small amount - $106 million this year - to fight illiteracy, and the assistance reaches only about 4 percent of those who need help, more without spending more. That is a tall order, but not impossible. This is where a Literacy Corps comes in Successful projects at two colleges suggest that such a corps is an idea waiting to happen. The first was de-veloped in 1969 at the University of Miami by Norman Manasa, who was a student there and who now heads the Washington Education Project in the District of Columbia. In 1986 he encouraged St. John's University to establish a similar pro-gram. It began last January with 12 students and has been well received in schools in Flushing, New York. Jef-frey Ratner, principal of Edward Hart sentary School, wrote in April: The benefit of this kind of individualized help is enormous. Dramatic improvement has been shown by many voungsters in the program." The SL John's students at his school volunteered to continue their inforing for more than a month past the end of their college year. Other St. John's students have been tutoring in county family court, a bomeless shelter and a class for hyperactive children ar a local parochial school.

of the Constit

The results of these pilot efforts almost two decades apart are so compelling that the time has come for a courses at their colleges comparable to those in clinical legal education at law schools. They would be instructed in-relevant, disciplines and assigned as tutors in schools and other locations, as well as Head Start centers, institu tions for the disabled, adult education programs, jails and other facilities. In a typical semester, each student would provide 60 hours of tutoring. If 800 of our 3,300 colleges participate, it is likely that about 130,000 undergraduates would enroll in the courses and generate nearly eight million hours of tutoring over a two-year period. Valued at $20 an hour, this instruction would be worth $160 million in tutorial services, an eightfold return on the federal investment."

A Literacy Cotps might be the closest thing to a free hunch that Congress will ever see. It could be as free as voting - and it would provide better voters and citizens, end the treaty they had no authority to do anything to exempt the affected U.S. companies from the forthcoming tax liability.

But three days later, the Treasury did exactly what leaders of the securities industry said should have been done immediately. It announced plans to ask Congress to approve legislation that would exempt these intercompany loans from taxation.

Roger Miniz, assistant secretary of the Treasury for tax policy, admitted Thursday. "I was surprised by the number of bonds that are held by Americans. , who stand to lose as a result of the termination of the treaty."

Informed sources said it was the loud complaints from U.S. insurance companies - warning that they would suffer badly if they lost such high-yielding assets — that turned the Treasury Department's view. U.S. residents are not allowed to buy new issues but may purchase Eurobonds either as a private placement .or 90 days after the initial offering.

Another factor that no doubt played a role in the Treasury's about-face is that not all Eurobond issuers can afford to redeem their paper. Texaco, for example, is in voluntary bankruptcy proceedings over its court battle with Pennzoil and the sudden obligation to redeem $1.9 billion of debt it could not now refinance would add to its woes. Another example is BankAmer-

BRUSSELS - The European Community's executive Commission is working on plans to take legal action against big company mergers that are deemed to distort competition in the EC, officials have said. They said Friday that the EC commissioner for competition, Peter

Sutherland, had lost patience with members' failure to agree to new rules for the 12-nation bloc. Mr. Sutherland intends to withdraw proposals that are before EC governments for tougher controls on large cross-border takeovers. Instead, the officials said, he planned direct legal action on a case-bycase basis by using existing EC regulations.

His plans are likely to meet strong resistance from finance and economie ministers and could put the Commission in conflict with governments that have given certain takeovers the go-ahead. Over the last 18 months, the Commission has adopted a toughe competition policy and has imposed record fines on a several firms for breach of rules.

Officials said Mr. Sutherland will propose that the 17-member Commission withdraw the current plans if there is again no progress towards an agreement in ministerial talks next month.

Britain, Italy and France have reservations over the measures currently under consideration.

Dalkon Dispute Clouds Robins Merger

By Tamar Lewin New York Times Service

NEW YORK - Claimants alleging injuries from A. H. Robins Co.'s Dalkon Shield contraceptive device could frustrate the intended $2.6 billion merger between Robins and Rorer Group, lawyers close to the merger negotiations say.

"Unless the Dalkon Shield claimants agree to the deal, there won't be any deal," said one lawyer when the merger agreement was formally announced Friday.

So far, the claimants have opposed the merger plan, first unveiled late last month. The plan includes a $725 million stock swap, a $1.75 billion trust fund for the 320,000 Dalkon Shield claimants and a $120 million trust fund for Robins' other creditors. The merger would create the sixth-largest over-the-counter drug company in the United States.

Robert E. Cawthorn, chairman and chief execu tive of Rorer, said Friday that he boped to be able to reach agreement with the claimants.

"In proposing this merger agreement, Rorer is conscious of the social responsibility to resolve as soon as possible the Dalkon Shield claims," he said. "By providing $1.75 billion, all legitimate claims can be processed and settled in the shortest possible time while insulating Rorer from such claims."

Under the plan, the Dalkon Shield claimants, who say the device caused pelvic infections, sterility and other injuries, could recover no more than the money set aside in the trust fund.

Some of the claimants' representatives have argued that the merger deal violates basic principles of bankruptcy law, since shareholders will get a profit, while the fixed sum for the claimants might not fully compensate for all the injuries.

The merger calls for Robins shareholders to receive at least $30 a share, which is above the $28.625 close on Thursday ahead of the Independence Day holiday weekend.

Robins said that Friday's letter of intent was subject to the execution of a definitive merger agreement by July 31. That agreement, which would be subject to approval by Rorer's shareholders, would then be made part of Robins' bankruptcy reorganization plan. That plan, in turn, must be approved by the bankruptcy court.

Robins, which makes such consumer products as Chap Stick lip balm and Robitussin cough syrup, has been in bankruptcy proceedings since 1985 because of the claims over the Dalkon Shield, which was taken off the U.S. market in 1974 after more than 2.5 million of the plastic intrauterine devices had been sold. Worldwide, Robins has sold about 4.5 million Dalkon Shields.

Rorer has yet to negotiate directly with the Dalkon Shield claimants. But if the claimants fight the merger, the lengthy bankruptcy proceedings could be drawn out for years to come. And the very threat of continuing opposition may be enough to jeopardize the merger plan, since Rorer, the maker of Maalox antacid and Ascriptin, an aspirin product, is a consumer products company that may not want to run the risk of alienating more than 300,000 women.

In the last few months, Robins has been the object of several takeover offers, including an earlier one that Rorer withdrew.

The current Rorer proposal apparently proved impossible to turn down, parily because it had the backing of Robins' outside shareholders. The Robins family controls about 40 percent of the stock, and would get about $300 million.

Singapore is still fighting out of the worst downturn in its history. Malaysia and Indonesia have not yet recovered from the dramatic fall in their earnings from petroleum and other primary exports. None is expected to match Thailand in terms of economic growth this year.

There is also a profound psychological dimension. As the only Southeast Asian nation that was never colonized, Thailand's natural insularity has long been reflected in the focus of industry on the domestic market.

Renters SAO PAULO - Brazil's car industry had its worst domestic sales for 15 years in the first half of 1987, but exports boomed, automakers said Saturday.

The industry association said domestic sales from January to June totaled 279,839 vehicles. The industry expects to sell 550,000 vehicles in Brazil this year, after 877,000 last year. In-flation and high taxes on cars have sliced cut demand.

But exports, worth $1.68 billion_all of last year, hit $1.16 billion in the first half of 1987.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Mansell Edges Piquet in French Grand Prix

LE CASTELLET, France (AP) - Nigel Mansell of Britain won the French Grand Prix on Sunday for the second straight year, leading a 1-2 linish for the Williams-Honda team on the Paul Ricard circuit.

Nelson Piquet of Brazil was second, trailing Mansell, the pole winner, by 7.7 seconds at the finish line after battling furiously for the lead for 20 laps. Alain Prost of France was third, again missing a chance for a record 28th Formula-1 victory. It was Mansell's second Grand Prix victory of the season and ninth of his career.

Mansell led early, then lost the lead after pitting for tire changes. But he regained it on the 46th lap, passing Piquet with a daring move inside a curve.

McCullough Slips to a Tie at Canadian Open

OAKVILLE, Ontario (Compiled From Dispatches) --- Mike McCullough dou-ble bogsyed the 18th hole Saturday, when his second shot landed in a lake, and dropped into a tie for the lead at 207 with Cartis Strange and Dick Zokol of Canada after three rounds of the Canadian Open Golf Tournament.

McCullough, 42, who has yet to win in a 16 years on the pro tour, shot 68, four under par. Strange, a former winner of the tournament, birdied his last hole for 66, the day's best round, while Zokol shot 69. Nick Price of South Africa, off a 70, was at 209. Sixty-three golfers, including Zokol, were on the course when a storm hit Friday and had to finish Saturday. After the second round, Price and McCullough, with 67s Friday, were a stroke off the lead shared by Zokoi and David Frost at 138. (AP, NYT)

For the Record

Kelvin Seabrooks of the United States retained his International Boxing Federation bantamweight title Saturday in Calais, France, when his fight against Thierry Jacob of France was ruled a no-contest by the three judges and referee. Jacob, bleeding heavily from cuts above his eyes, did not answer the bell for the 10th round. (UPI)

SPORTS

WIMBLEDON, England - Each one, she said, is more special than the last. Saturday, there was no doubting that. Martina Navratilova used all her guile, all her skill and all her courage. And when she was through, she had made tennis history.

In a taut, tense match that could have turned the other way at any moment, Navratilova beat Staffi Graf, 7-5, 6-3, to win a record south straight Wimbledon singles title and the eighth Wimble don singles title of her remarkable career."

The importance of the victory to Navratilova cannot be overstated. She wanted to break the record of five straight singles titles she shared with Suzanne Lenglen. H. Lamie Doherty and Bjorn Borg. She wanted to equal the record of eight singles thies won by Helen Wills Moody.

Almost as important, Navratilova wanted to send a message to Graf: Not yet. The 18-year-old although she is 30 and had not won a tournament this year. She carried with her to Centre Court a 40-match winning streak at Wimbledon, years of experience and her fierce pride. Using every hit of advantage those three things provided, she walked off with the trophy she cherishes most. "I had beat myself in matches a couple of times. but that just was not going to happen here," she said, adding that "if somebody was going to beat me, it would be with better shots and better tennis. not because I got upset, got nervous or let down mentally. I had tunnel vision and didn't let any-thing get to me. I played a great match. I had to." In the first set, she had three net cord winners, a miss-hit that landed on the base line and a bad-hop serve that went under Graf's racket the first time she faced 15-30.

"I thought, "The gods are with me today," Navratikova said. "That helped me psychologi-cally and it probably frustrated her." It wasn't just the gods, though. Navratilova put herself in front and stayed there, holding her serve to start the match and never once losing it. (AFP) But that didn't mean it was easy.

Graf was almost as strong in her service games " cially that one," Graf a for most of the first set. At 1-2, she sayed a back " if over that stupid net." for most of the first set. At 1-2, she save a decay it over that supply late, point by reaching a drop shot and ponching a backhand cross court for a winner. They stayed on serve routinely until 5-4. Navranlova. Then, suddenly, Navranlova was at the net like a cat. She pot Graf down quickly at 0-40. Three set it's destiny. Navranlova and the present to be. She pot Graf down quickly at 0-40. quickly to lead, 6-5, and had Graf in trouble again at 15-40 with a crackling forehand return ... anything else at that moment. I got two serves that set up an easy backhand volley. But Grat ...in, 30-0, I missed my first serve and for a second wouldn't crack. Two more big serves got her to ... I thought, "Bairs," where she had double-fault-

the opening game of the second set. A quick-break and perhaps the match would turn, But Navratilova served one more time to the backhand and, one more time, Graf. netted it. She. never came that close to breaking again. At 3-3, 15-30, she nailed a backhand down the line. It looked like a winner, Navratilova lunged, got ber racket on the ball and it hit the tape and crawled over the net "I felt terrible about the net-cords, but espe-

Frankfurt

The Frankfort stock market staged a firm recovery toward the end of the week and the Commerzbank index finished at 1.892.6, one point above its level of the previous Friday. The sharp falls on Monday and Tuesday were offset largely by the finner dollar's support for export-oriented stocks. Volume on the eight West German ex-changes slipped to 21 billion Deutsche marks

The Bourse had expected a drop to interest rates, but not so soon, and it was surprised on Monday when the Bank of France dropped its key rate to 75 percent. Stock prices then rose by 4 percent for the week, as the CAC index closed higher at 415.3, against 401.4 the previe ous Friday. Monetary anthonities felt lower rates were justified by the fall in foreign rates, the franc's stabilization, and the moderate price increases of the last few weeks. Moreover, rates might dip again soon. Analysts, expecting a traditional summer fally, said that French stocks are again at attractive price levels, in view of first-half earnings reports and high dividends.

Singapore

Share prices soared to new highs on the Singapore stock market last week, following secowed, overseas demand and institutional buying support. Most blue chips registered double-digit gains, while Malaysian second liners continued to dominate the active stocks list. Investors attributed the heavy activity to confidence in both the Singapore and Malaysian economies doing well in the second half of the year. The Straits Times industrial index added 26.52 points for the week to hi 1287.28. Turnover totaled slightly more than 200 million miles . . .

STRASBOURG, France Marc Sergeant of Belgium woo the 70-mile (113-kilometer) fifth stage Sunday of the Tour de France cyching race from Pforzheim. West Germany, 10 Strasbourg, while Erich Mächler of Switzerland retained the overall lead.

Another Belgian, Herman Frison of the Skala team, won the race's fourth leg, a 47.4-mile run earlier in the day from Stuttgart to Pforzheim.

Sergeant, the 1986 Belgian national champion, broke away 28 miles from the finish and beld on against a charging pack to be timed in 2 hours, 32 minutes, 29 seconds, 13 seconds ahead of the pack.

Frison led most of the fourth stage and finished 1:28 ahead of the second-place finisher, Jean-Paul van Poppel of the Netherlands. Mächler, riding for the Carrera team, was not among the first 15, hut finished with the main field.

Acacio da Silva of Portugal won Saturday's 131-mile third stage from Karlsruhe to Stuttgart in 5:27:35, with Mächler two seconds behind and Müller nine back.

Mächler was fourth overall after the two stages in West Berlin, 25 seconds behind Lech Piasecki of Poland. Piasecki dropped to 23d place.

POSTCARD

Cooked in the U.S.A.

By Janice Randall New York Times Service ARIS --- In July 1986, to coincide with the centennial of the Statue of Liberty, Elle magazine put out a "Special U.S.A." issue telling readers where in Paris to find Ralph Lauren clothes, Oshkosh overalls, baseball and football clubs and Mickey Mouse T-shirts. But nowhere in Paris could the editors find a French edition of an American cookery book. Less than a year later, two Americans have done more than trans-late an existing book; they have written one of their own: "Le Grand Livre de la Cuisine Américame." The authors, Sheila Malovany-Chevallier and Constance Borde, have lived in Paris since 1964 and teach here at the Institut d'Enides Politiques. Published by Editions Hermé in Paris, the book has more than 400 traditional and contemporary recipes in a dozen chapters on topics ranging from brunch to Thanksgiving dinner, Malovany-Chevallier and Borde, who were friends at Douglass College in New Jersey, had earlier writ-ten a pair of English grammar texts for French students. They have strong ties to both the United States and France.

The authors, who are both 45 years old, first tapped their own resources and skills. Both invite French guests to their homes for standard American fare like glazed ham and cheesecake

Once they had exhausted their own recipes, they consulted cookbooks and food magazines and called on friends for inspiration. Their goal was to gather the widest variety of American dishes, including ethnic ones, that were typical but could be made using ingredients easily found in France.

Not surprisingly, the book's reci-pes include those for shepherd's pic, corn bread and meat loaf, along with Yankee pot roast and Southern fried chicken. The several Jewish and Italian dishes reflect. respectively, Malovany-Chevallier's and Borde's origins, And with recipes for apple crisp and Indian pudding, gingerbread and marble cake, the lengthy dessert chapter, the authors say, will seem most foreign to the French, masters and lovers of fancy pastries.

Most of our recipes are simple and practical - that's what makes them American," Malovany-Chechins."

Looking back, Pesek says be stayed too long in the Netherlands. His return to Czechoslovakia paid rapid dividends, however, with a year in Bratislava as chief conductor of the Slovak Philharmonic Orchestra before being summoned to Pragoe as Václav Noumann's deputy with the Czech Philharmonic. His career demonstrates that it is possible to reach a top position in Czech musical life without Comminist Party affiliations.

particularly the experience he has gained conducting French and contemporary music in Czechoslovakia, where his recordings range from Ravel and Franz midt to Martinu's "The Greek Passion." Negotiations are currently under way between the Czech state record company Su-praphon and the British Virgin label for a series of joint promotions featuring popular Czech and German repertoire, to be di-vided between Pesel's Liverpool and Prague orchestras. He says he will not be pushing the Czech or Slavic repertoire in Liverpool, but will aim to perform works that interest the orchestra. In coming weeks British audiences will hear him conduct music by Elgar and the contemporary Brit-ish composer Oliver Knussen, as well as the Asrael Symphony by the Czech composer Josef Suk.

Pesek is pleased with the size of the concertgoing public in Liver-pool, a city he described as "full of life, without facade or preten-sion." He also admires what he calls the "professionalism and self-respect" of British musicians, and says this was the factor that stiracted him most to working on a permanent basis with the Liverpool orchestra. "They don't talk much. If they have something to work on, they go away and next day they come back fully pre-pared. There's no "Please this" and "Please that." Their whole sense of rhythm and ensemble is faster than with Czech orchestras. I like the woodwind, and the strings are capable of an envessive without forcing the tone: There is less sound in terms of decibels, but more individual beauty.

"I think I respond to their youthful spirit. Everyone in and around the orchestra is dedicated. and competent, making the life of the conductor easier and happier. Coming from Czechoslovakia, it makes me realize that too much security for musicians is reflected in the way they make music. As long as we like each other, we can stay together. It will be like an open marriage - if something doesn't work, we can always say goodbye."
